JAPPE BRUK

A paper mill in Fjelland

A Scandinavian HO layout that ingeniously changes period, built and described by Carsten Niels Gorm.

Can a small layout be fun?

After 20 years with a room-size Märklin layout, and with the focus on operation, I felt like following an old inclination for small layouts. I have always been interested in small layouts, but I have also been doubtful about the operational possibilities. I put forward my thoughts among our model railway team, which has been together for 20 years, and from them I got a lot of encouragement and ideas. I then started to look through German, American, and English magazines for articles on small layouts. At the same time I was making sketches for track plans and timetables, and one day I came up with the basic idea for Jappe Bruk and I decided to build it.
